ABOUT THE PRODUCTION
As a one-actor, multi-character thrill ride, Dracula: The Journal of Jonathan Harker is a faithful adaptation that closely adheres to the structure and story of the original novel. In remarkable physical feats that sometimes occur literally over the heads of the audience, actor Zachary Andrews turns in a performance that is the equivalent of running nine miles.

The story of the play covers Jonathan Harker sent to Castle Dracula to deliver property deeds to the infamous Count. There, Harker's journal entries reveal he is a witness to increasingly horrific sights, until he becomes captive to an undead creature of the night.

When asked why this adaptation of Dracula was selected for The Coterie's main stage season, production director and Coterie producing artistic director Jeff Church said, "We love this script, which originated at Orlando Shakes, because it is so faithful to the form of Bram Stoker's original, which was written in journal and diary entries, telegrams and letters, etc. In this electrifying one man show, we get to hear the true source material performed from each of the character's point of view." Church also gave insight on what audiences can expect from actor Zachary Andrews, "Zach will portray a dozen characters, and you'll find each highly delineated. Zach, who is physically an adventurous performer, will usher us through the terrors of Dracula's move from Transylvania to the streets of London by use of a steampunk playground we've constructed for him. At times, he'll literally be over the heads of the audience."

When asked what excited him most about taking on the multiple roles in Dracula, Andrews explained, "This is, in many ways, the most faithful adaptation of Bram Stoker's novel I have come across. Unlike the multitude of movies and handful of stage plays, the bulk of the text in this adaptation is pulled directly from the novel, and nearly every major event is represented without embellishment. It is a marvel that Jim Helsinger's adaptation moves so quickly and is yet so faithful to the legendary source material."

Produced as part of The Coterie Sparks series, Dracula: The Journal of Jonathan Harker will be best appreciated by pre-teen age through adult. The production is funded in part by the Missouri Arts Council and ArtsKC Fund.
